

MH Qazi Award for Innovation in Health Professions Education

Criteria for MH Qazi Award for Innovation in Health Professions Education

The MH Qazi Award for innovation in Health Professions Education (HPE) has been established by the University of Lahore, to promote health professions education in Pakistan. The award is awarded to person/persons, institution/institutions, governmental or non-governmental organization/organizations, who or which has/have made a significant contribution to health professions education in Pakistan.

The award aims at rewarding work that has extended beyond the call of normal duties of a person or organization. It is not intended as an award for mere performance of duties normally expected of a person or organization. In order to be eligible for the award, a person or organization must demonstrate significant contribution to health professions education in Pakistan, beyond the scope of normal/regular responsibilities of the person/organization expected from him/her. The Award is intended for an individual, organization, program, project, or practice that show significant impact on health professions education in Pakistan in one or more of the following capacities.

- The person/organization demonstrates innovation in HPE, that is unique, novel, or creative in addressing HPE challenges in Pakistan/globally.
- Plays a leadership role in HPE that leads to a significant change in HPE in Pakistan/globally.
- Shows a significant impact on the professionalization of HPE in Pakistan/globally.
- Conducts research that has significant impact on HPE in Pakistan/globally.
- Advocates and supports HPE that lead to the promotion of the field in HPE institutions and other similar stakeholders.
